New regulations for LED lamps

From 30 June 2018 all mains voltage (i.e. 240Va.c. rated) self-ballasted LED lamps must be certified, marked and approved in accordance with the Electrical Equipment Safety System before being sold in Tasmania.

What do I do with old stock?

Existing non-approved stocks held by retail and wholesale suppliers in Tasmania may be “grandfathered” and continue to be sold until sold out.

New stock

All products arriving in Tasmania from June 30 2018 must be marked to show approval and compliance with the relevant electrical safety standard.

New Stock arriving in Tasmania must comply with Part 4 of the Electricity Industry Safety and Administration Act 1997 (the “Act”). Electrical articles, defined in the Australian Standard AS/NZS 4417.2—2012 Regulatory compliance mark for electrical and electronic equipment must, before sale:

- be approved
- be marked to indicate approval and
- comply with its relevant electrical safety standard.

Regulatory Compliance Mark (RCM)

The RCM shows that equipment sold by a responsible supplier complies with regulations in Australia and New Zealand.
Who does this requirement apply to?

- Product sellers
- Importers
- Wholesalers
- Retailers
- Contractors

Common types of mains voltage self-ballasted LED lamps covered by this new requirement

![LED lamps images]

More information about the sale of electrical appliances and equipment in Tasmania is available at www.cbos.tas.gov.au

This document has been produced and published by the Consumer, Building and Occupational Services Division of the Department of Justice. Although every care has been taken in the production of the work, no responsibility is accepted for the accuracy, completeness or relevance to the user’s purpose, of the information. Those using it for whatever purpose are advised to verify it with the relevant government department, local government body or other source to obtain any appropriate professional advice. The Crown, its officers, employees and agents do not accept liability however arising, including liability for negligence, for any loss resulting from the use of or reliance upon the information and/or reliance on its viability at any time.